Author Meet & Greet Scheduled

(Nottoway County, Virginia – March 2, 2017)

Last fall, Richmond native Thornton Cline toured Nottoway County, partnering with the Nottoway County Public Library system to offer multi-media presentations of his children's book The Amazing, Incredible Shrinking Ukulele to students in each of the area's schools. Cline has since enjoyed the release of several new books, including one Spanish edition, and he will be returning to Virginia to share them.

Jennifer Nelson, the librarian at the Burkeville Elementary and Crewe Primary schools, will host Mr. Cline. As classes rotate through the school library throughout the day, children will experience his presentation of The Amazing, Incredible Shrinking Drums. Cline will also offer a Meet & Greet session at the Crewe branch of the Nottoway County Public Library on Thursday, March 9 at 6:00. He will have copies of a variety of his books for sale and would be delighted to answer questions about any of them or about his experience in writing and getting works published.

In addition to being an author, Cline is an award-winning musician and has been nominated for several Dove and Grammy Awards. The Hendersonville, Tennessee resident has twice been honored as "Songwriter of the Year" and is instructor at Cumberland University (TN). Information about Cline's children's series as well as his adult novels and non-fiction books can be found at www.thorntoncline.com/.
