Contest to Name Mascot Announced

(Nottoway County, Virginia – March 23, 2017)

The Nottoway County Public Library System will have its new, nameless mascot at the April 4th Volunteer Fair and Ice Cream Social. The event will kick off a “Name the Mascot” contest that will continue for six weeks.

The contest will have two stages. During the first three weeks of the contest, area residents are asked to visit any branch location to obtain and submit an entry form with the name they suggest. For the second stage, the top ten names will be announced, and residents will be asked to return to the library to vote for their favorite.

Library director Jackie Zataweski reports, “The winning name will be announced the week of May 21, and the person submitting that name will receive a mascot of his or her own.” She adds, “Over the summer, the mascot will be exploring Nottoway County and residents will be invited to guess the locations.”
