Something New for Summer Reading

(Nottoway County, Virginia – May 25, 2017)

Nottoway County's Summer Reading Program begins next week, and a free magic show by Richmond native Mickey Moore will kick-off the six-week long program. The show will take place at the Crewe library on Tuesday, June 6 at 6:30 and is open to anyone who enjoys magic.

This year, the library's Story Time program will be incorporated into Summer Reading, making the Program open to all ages - from pre-school to adult. "We hope this will encourage families to read together," says library director Jackie Zataweski. She adds, "In addition to regular incentives for the children, we will have several prize drawings, and tickets for these can be earned by all patrons completing reading logs."

Weekly activities are planned for each branch at the regular Summer Reading Program meetings. These will take place at 11:00 on Wednesdays (Crewe), Thursdays (Burkeville), and Fridays (Blackstone) and Nottoway residents are encouraged to participate at any location convenient to them. Additional activities are scheduled to take place throughout the program.

Zataweski notes another change, "This year, we're going to take part in the Summer Food Service Program and offer nutritious snacks at the Burkeville location." These will be available on Thursdays at 10:30 and all children 18 and under are welcome. No registration is necessary for the snacks. Participation in the Summer Reading Program is encouraged but not required.
